Dear Mr. McGinnis:

I appreciate your kind note of October 21st. I should like nothing better than to visit some of your branches and have this occasion to see more of your country, which I have visited so often. However, at the present time it is practically impossible for me to plan to be away from my desk for any protracted period, and I fear that we shall have to put off my trip until conditions are a little calmer than they are at present.

It is always good to hear from you.

Faithfully yours,
